PROPOSED AMENDMENT AND

revision of the Constitution of the State of Nevada, passed at the seventh session of the Legislature, by the Assembly, the Senate con-curring, that the Constitution of the State of Nevada be amended as follows:

Amend Section one of Article IX of the Constitution of the State of Nevada so as to read as

Section 1. The fiscal year shall commence on the first day of December in each year.

Passed January 12, 1876.

Resolved, by the Assembly, the Senate con-curring, that our history, as a State, has taught us

One dollar and seventeen cents per bushel is the ruling price for wheat this season in Oregon.

The general verdict of the press in regard to the sentence of John D. Lee seems to be "good—as far as it goes."

The Arizona papers complain of wholesale stealing and killing of horses, mules, and cattle by the Apaches.

One thousand two hundred and three persons have been admitted to citizenship in San Francisco this year.

The Ohio Democratic Central Committee advises the untimely flight to the bitter death. And death it will surely be.

The Troy Times would not be surprised if the Republican majority in the State of New York footed up 49,000 to 50,000.

JUDON LEONARD is making a thorough canvass in Eastern Nevada. We predict his election by a handsome majority.

The Salt Lake Tribune says that a lover of the curious wants to get possession of the bullet which takes the life of John D. Lee.

The New York Times is of the opinion that Tammany has organized a scheme of extensive frauds upon the ballot box. False registration is suspected.

Five car loads of San Diego honey have arrived in New York. There are 20,000 pounds of it. All this mass of sweetness is from Harrison's monster apiaries.

Movements in Russian look like preparations for war; and already the cheerful American grain merchant sees a prospective market for his stock and store.

The San Francisco Chronicle says that the recent election in Senator Booth was such as no other United States Senator, be he Republican or Democrat, has ever received at the hands of a California constituency.

A terrific hurricane has been sweeping over Oregon, overturning houses and barns, twisting off the trunks of great trees and playing havoc generally. No lives were lost but the destruction of property is very considerable.

A special from London says the Government has ordered 50,000 English troops to be put in readiness for immediate dispatch, if necessary, for Turkey. Detachments of all English naval officers have been recalled.

As rapidly as the surveying parties, who have been operating in the interior all summer, reach the Fraser river cañons, British Columbia, they will be set to work to survey those localities for a railway line, the Ottawa Government being anxious to fix upon a route through British Columbia before January 1st.

SEARLES & Co., of New York, say that their own special private advices from Europe represent war as almost certain between Russia and Turkey. It is not believed that a conflict can be avoided. The dispatch from Bucharest, however, reporting the marching of a large Russian army into Bulgaria is not confirmed.

It is only when in presence of danger that the Republicans of the Nation are capable of making their grandest effort, for thousands who ordinarily give the party a more passive support, become active advocates. This is well illustrated by the unqualified enthusiasm displayed throughout this State—a sure sign of the victory we are about to achieve.

The Indian Agent at the Sioux reservation has received instruction to inform Sitting Bull that the only condition of peace is his surrender, when he will be treated as a prisoner of war. He is to issue no rations except after such surrender, and when fully satisfied that the Indians can be kept at the agency, to issue stores and property. The military will co-operate as far as possible.

Reform is the watchword of the day. The cry comes forth from every quarter, and in view of the efforts and influences at work, one would suppose that the evils which infest society would disappear like mist before the rising sun. But is such the case? The praying bands, the temperance clubs, the political parties, the religious sects, are all singing for reform. Daily and nightly the bells toll, meetings are held, experiences are related, the appeals and arguments are zealous and urgent, and the whole air is redolent with the spirit of reformation.

For many years, rather spasmodically, have such efforts been put forth, but what are the results? In what degree has society been relieved of some of its worst evils? Do the records of the courts show a less amount of drunkenness and crime? Do not tramps and pauperism, idleness and intemperance abound? Are not the columns of the newspapers daily filled with robberies and murders, crimes and misdemeanors of every description, to an extent unprecedented in this and unparalleled in any other civilized nation?

The social and political condition of the country is such as to awaken the fears of many of its most eminent statesmen. These are facts too palpable to be denied, and cannot be got rid of by ignoring the subject. The sectional animosities, the political hatred and religious feuds are but smoldering embers, liable at any moment to burst forth with violent irruption. These subjects open too broad a field to enter upon at present. That the welfare of society demands radical reform is acknowledged. The loud shouting for political reform, just now, is not easy to estimate perhaps at its proper value.

In the field of intemperance numerous organizations are at work, with commendable zeal, and have accomplished a great amount of good, but this remedy can hardly prove adequate to the cure of so severe a disease. Such an evil can only be reached by a more universal and stable authority, permanent and impartial in its action, holding all men alike to the observance of such rules as are necessary for the public good. When the Presidential campaign is over and the great Centennial past and gone, it will be well for the people to consider the subject of so modifying their compact as to open the way to reform, and to better preserve the true liberties of all.

It can at least secure such elementary conditions as are essential, by closing up the avenues to vice and crime, and establishing and enforcing a better system of social regulations and order, without which reform, in the true sense of the word, can no more be expected to take place, than a stream to rise above its fountain.

WAR UPON THE INSECTS.

The Phylloxera, a microscopic insect, is threatening destruction of the entire vintage of France, five million acres, giving employment to seven million people, and producing an annual harvest worth $600,000,000. In some localities the vineyards have already been reduced one half, and in others totally destroyed. Such wholesale work ought to make the beetle-headed potato bug ashamed of himself. The people of Europe are waking up to the importance of suppressing the ravages of this and various other insects. The French government has appointed a commission to investigate the matter, and offered prizes for a remedy. In England a society has been organized for the purpose of collecting statistics and other information relative to the ravages of insects, their nature, habits and other facts bearing upon the subject. In this manner something has already been done to stay insect ravages. No such society exists in the United States, but the New York Bulletin urges combination and effort, as the only means of securing relief from the various pests that scourge the country. With American experience of the weevil, the cutworm, the caterpillar, the grasshopper, the potato bug, and a dozen other scourges, we shall be glad to learn that other people are moving in the matter, however apathetic we may have been ourselves.

There are 858 American born and 897 foreign born citizens on the registry list in Carson. In Virginia the books closes with 5,692 names on them.

Smyrna was quiet at 53 pence per ounce in London yesterday. Going steadily.

ADDRESS TO NATIONAL REPUBLICANS.

The Republican National Committee has issued an address, in which it congratulates the party which it represents and the country upon the results of the Fall elections already held. In Maine, a Republican majority of less than 5,000 has been increased to nearly 10,000. In Vermont the old ascendancy has been fully maintained. In Colorado a Democratic majority of 2,000 has been overcome and the Republican Governor and both branches of the Legislature are elected, besides the recovery of the State, two United States Senators and three Presidential electors. In Ohio the Republican majority of 5,500 has been increased to between 9,000 and 10,000, and five Republican Congressmen have been gained. In Indiana a Democratic majority of 17,000 has been reduced to 5,000, with a gain of four Republican Congressmen and the Legislature upon a joint ballot. Three highly gratifying results have been obtained, in favor of the frauds at the ballot box and the unpatriotic use of money by the opposition. They show the drift of popular sentiment and clearly indicate a national victory for the Republican party in November. All that is now necessary is to continue the vigorous prosecution of the canvass to secure protection for all citizens in the right of ballot, to bring all legal voters to the polls, and to practice the utmost vigilance upon the day of election. Fortunately for the country our candidates represent the best spirit of reform, to which they are pledged by every act and utterance of their lives, and their success alone will insure an honest administration and preserve the Government from the unfriendly hands of those who secretly sought to destroy it and who seek to prey upon its resources.

The President and Cabinet, at the meeting of the latter yesterday, took final action with regard to the disposition of Tweed, whose arrival on the steamer Franklin, at New York, is now hourly expected. Acting Secretary of State, Culweller, presented to the Cabinet a letter from Governor Tilden, asking that Tweed, on his arrival, be delivered to the Sheriff of New York, and that no unofficial business be permitted with the vessel until after Tweed is surrendered to Sheriff Connor. The President and Cabinet decided that this request should be promptly complied with, and accordingly the Secretary of the Navy was directed to send orders to the Commander of the Brooklyn Navy Yard to that effect, to be delivered to the Commander of the Franklin on arrival.

The bust for the Greeley memorial monument is being cast at Wood's foundry, Philadelphia. It is to be of bronze, and of size proportionate to a figure of about ten and a half feet. The pedestal and base are to be of Quincy and Maine granite, bearing a bas relief in bronze, with the following inscription: "Horace Greeley, born February 3, 1811; died November 29, 1872. The founder of the New York Tribune." The entire cost will be over $5,000. It is expected that the unveiling will take place early in December.

Tilden and his Friends.

We gladly surrender a good deal of space to-day to the subjoined communication from Congressman Woodburn. It is a carefully compiled statement of the real opinions of the foremost Democratic journals and leaders of the character of Governor Tilden. These opinions were given when he was a prominent candidate for the Democratic nomination; they were the utterances of the best and wisest members of the Democratic party, made to save, if possible, the party from disaster. They were not sufficient to defeat the old Tammany chief, but they make the record of the estimation in which he is held by the best men of his party. The communication is as follows:

To the Editor of the Territorial Enterprise: I was pleased to read in your issue of to-day an editorial in which you showed that Republicans are not responsible for the public scandals connected with the name of Samuel J. Tilden, Democratic nominee for the Presidency. I know that it is not in the hearts of Republicans in this Centennial year to indulge unnecessarily in bitter personalities. Republicans are not responsible for "waving the bloody shirt." Southern Democrats have made the bloody shirts, and Republicans cannot, in justice to freemen of the Republic, fail to make record of crimes which have been, and are being, committed, while, with a kindly spirit, they may be loth to charge evil intent for events in the future. We are engaged this year in the effort to perpetuate the American idea of liberty, free speech, free action within the law, loyalty to the country, and protection to citizens, whatever may be their humble position, and above all the honor of free labor; and in our aggressive warfare we have only to wage war upon disloyalty and insincerity in all their guises. The national issue is well understood by the people—we are now fighting with the ballot against a foe which is antagonistic to free institutions and which we vanquished once with the bullet. The American name would indeed be disgraced before the world if it should become synonymous with insincerity, as it would, should the people now, while still consenting to bear the burden of a previous taxation, willingly endured for the sake of loyalty to the American idea, voluntarily place in power the very men who caused the taxation and who are desirous of adding doubly to its burden. We cannot afford to give the lie to our record and we cannot afford to appear Janus-faced to the civilized world. Yet the Republicans have to encounter in this campaign a form of disloyalty which is far more treacherous than avowed treason. We have placed at the head of our column the name of Rutherford B. Hayes, a man whom Republicans are proud to claim as fully identified with the history of American liberty and one whom Democratic orators do not attempt to assail. We are forced to draw the comparison between him and the standard-bearer of the Democrats, and here it is that we encounter a difficulty which the people should fully comprehend. Recollect that the Republicans do not claim to be intimately acquainted with the character of Samuel J. Tilden. We know him by his reputation in his own party. We do not deny that there are many honest-minded, conscientious Democrats. We know there are many such, and that they will not vote for Tilden and Hendricks in November. It is their voice, which is now hushed by the organs of the Democratic party, but which before his nomination boldly protested against his nomination, proclaimed his true character and predicted his defeat, if nominated. These men are voiceless now. Before the St. Louis Convention convened, the leading Democratic organs, moved by an honest sentiment and a desire to succeed through honest candidates for office, did not disguise their hostility to Tilden and Hendricks. They strove by all honorable means to awaken a sense of the responsibility of the situation in the minds of Democrats; but they failed, and the honest and conscientious Democrats were defeated by manipulation and corruption. The Democratic organs are disloyal to themselves and to the right by keeping silence now that Tilden has been nominated, and Republicans unjustly are assailed as the authors of scandals affecting Tilden's character. The people should know that this attack upon our party is unjust, and, to prove it conclusively, permit me to quote the honest expressions of Democrats, made prior to the St. Louis Convention, in addition to those already published in the ENTERPRISE, and then let the people judge whether our party is to be blamed for the defamation of an opponent.

The Cincinnati Enquirer, the leading Democratic organ of the West, said:

There are a few facts concerning Sam. Tilden which we trust will sink into the minds of Western and Southern Democrats:

1. He cannot carry his own State in November.
2. He cannot carry any Northern State.
3. He is a hypocrite, a political swindler, has long been a public plunderer, and is really the only disreputable candidate prominently named on the Democratic side.

4. He has sought this high office by methods so unprecedentedly shameless and disreputable that it would be an everlasting stigma upon a Democratic Convention to nominate him, and a reproach upon the American people to elect him if nominated.

Should "God's providence, seeming as strange," permit his nomination, by whom and what would he be nominated? By the scurvy, conscienceless tools that money can purchase; by the most corrupt influences that ever entered into a Presidential nomination; by the system on which all other quack medicines are sold—advertising—and even respectable medical associations read out of the profession doctors who will advertise. It would seem that the Democratic party should have as high a respect for the good name of the party and the Government as the vendors of pills have for their craft. It could not but be that a man educated in cunning, hypocrisy and iniquity, nominated in corruption and shameless-front-ery, even though his enemies could elect him, would give us the most corrupt administration the country has ever known. Neither impartial dignities nor the gloom of solitude, says Tacitus, could save Tiberius from himself, and Tilden five millions, and spent it freely, or let his friends spend it freely for him, in the campaign of 1874. Until his election for Governor he was hardly known outside of New York. Tilden and his friends banqueted the poor workmen of New York by telling them they could have plenty of work at good wages if they would vote for him for Governor. They did so. To-day there are more idle men in New York city than when Dix was Governor. Besides, wages have been put down.

But, perhaps, it may be said that the Democrats of the West did not understand the character of Tilden. Let us then go to the State of New York for proofs. First, let us read the Albany Evening Times, published at the seat of government of New York, while Tilden occupied the Governor's chair. The Times said:

Supreme selfishness and a cold, unscrupulous, cunning nature are his marked characteristics. The intensity of his selfishness has never been relaxed even by the softening influences of married life, and he seems to be as destitute of magnetism or emotion as a mummy. Having devoted the earlier portion of his life to the study of the art of money-making, he practised it with a success which, within a few years, by one means and another, put millions in his purse. When he felt assured that the downfall of his former Tammany associates was inevitable, he hastened to promote that result. Having possessed himself of the party machinery, he used it to secure the nomination for Governor, and transferred on account of the want of any other

Have Republicans ever uttered more severe words against Tilden than these, and do not these words indicate that honest Democrats do not intend to stain their consciences by voting for Tilden?

Again, the Cincinnati Enquirer said :

There are many reasons why Governor Tilden should not be nominated, and why, if nominated, he will be defeated. He has been too closely identified, socially and politically and legally—we will not say financially—with the Tweed regime of New York. When Tweed escaped from the custody of the Sheriff of New York, many months ago, the Boss was not only a penitentiary convict, who had not fulfilled one-fifth of his term, but was being tried on a civil suit to recover $3,000,000—but a portion of the amount he had stolen from the city. There was every likelihood of making Tweed disgorge, but the Sheriff's officers were bribed, no doubt, and the Boss went on his way rejoicing. Tilden, the next day, with a flourish of trumpet, declared that the Sheriff, who was under bonds, was liable for Tweed's escape, and, furthermore, to pay over to the city $3,000,000 for which Tweed was held, and which suit, as a matter of course, must go by default. Nearly ten months have elapsed since. Tweed has not been caught. The Sheriff of New York (Conroy) still holds his post, and his bail-bond and property, and all effort to capture and bring back the Boss has been abandoned. The people, of New York city hold Tilden responsible for retaining in office a Sheriff who lets fly the great thieves of the Ring who nearly bankrupted the city. Another objection to Tilden is his aristocratic proclivities. The common people of New York do not like him. His money helped elect him two years ago. He is a bachelor with an ample fortune of four or ized opposition and the determined declaration of the man whom the party really desire to nominate. Having become Governor, every act has been performed with an eye single to the next step. Finding that to attack corruption and fraud was popular, and that the public mind was suspicious of any against whom charges were made, he hesitated not to promote attacks upon those in every respect his superiors, but whom he thought were possible impediments in his path; that, as Governor, he succeeded in a single year in reducing the Democratic majority over 35,000 votes, notwithstanding the unquestionably popular attack upon the canal frauds and mismanagement, is conclusive evidence of his want either of capacity or tact to successfully lead the Democratic party of the Empire State. That he is an inefficient, hesitating and unreliable public officer is palpable. He is neither prompt, nor frank, nor generous, nor agreeable, nor popular. To say that the Democracy of the Union really seek such a candidate is to say that they are unfitted to select a President.

Yet again the Times says :

There is a great stress put upon the services of Tilden in "breaking up the Tweed ring." Tilden was a co-worker with Tweed for years, and did not open his mouth against him until Jimmy O'Brien and the New York Times had furnished many of the leading facts to the public. When it was discovered that an outraged community could no longer stand the frauds of the rings, but were determined to break them up, then it occurred to our great railroad financier that the opportune moment had arrived for him to make capital out of the facts of fraud with which for years he had been familiar. Had the public remained indifferent to the frauds of Tweed, there is no reason to doubt that Mr. Tilden would have been as mum as a mouse up to this very day.

If we want proof that the honest Democrats of New York city do not intend to support Tilden let us read the following from the New York Express, an able Democratic organ:

While New York Democrats have not changed their position, Governor Tilden has changed his. He is no longer for Seymour, nor for Church, nor for any man in the land but Samuel J. Tilden! * * * The Tribune wants to know the reason of the opposition in the country to Governor Tilden. If it will read the addresses made at Albany, it will find its question answered. If it will read the disreputable record of public opinion, unmanufactured and circulated through a large advertising agency in this city, it will find an answer. If it knew, as we know, of the appliances used all over the State to elect and defeat delegates for the Union Convention, it would ask for no other answer—beyond this, there are ample reasons. There are better men. There are more popular men; men just as true as reformers, just as honest, just as true to principles and to the country, more faithful to friends, of quicker perception, of better judgment, of more executive ability, less selfish, less ambitious and wholly incapable of making the bad record which has stirred so many thousands in this State either to a preference for some other man or to a more direct opposition to Governor Tilden. We might add many other reasons, but we forbear, for to-day, at least.

Again, June 22, it says:

A man who has dealt so largely in railroads, and profited so largely by them, will not be trusted as a candidate. The losses have been too frightful upon the one hand, and the prof-

There are many who would sacrifice much for the success of their ticket, but there is also among them a deep-seated conviction that success with Tilden would only be the signal of their final overthrow. Read the following extracts from Democratic organs of the South, published before the St. Louis nominations.

The Louisville (Ky.) Jeffersonian Democrat said:

Altogether, Tilden may be considered the weakest man that could well be put in nomination. His nomination would simply mark the era of another sad blunder.

The Columbus (Ga.) Times said:

The nomination of Tilden would be not only prejudicial to our own section, but a very impolitic measure in a party sense, for we are convinced that Tilden cannot unite the Democratic vote in New York, and that his nomination would be ruinous to Democratic prospects in other States.

The Memphis (Tenn.) Avant-courier uttered its indignation as follows:

Should Tilden be nominated by a dozen so-called Democratic conventions, the Avant-courier will not support him, because the people are opposed to him, for the reason that he has nothing in common with them. He is a silk-stocking Democrat, with federalistic convictions, and believes in the centralization of money and bonds.

The Petersburg (Va.) Index-Apprentice said:

vate gains too enormous on the other, to make any man, identified as Mr. Tilden is with railroads, the proper candidate for the President of the United States. We seek simply to avoid the defeat of the Democratic party in November next by using all fair and honorable means to prevent an unwise nomination at St. Louis.

The Democrats of Chicago also scouted the idea that Tilden and Hendricks could make success perch upon the banner of the Democracy. Read what the Chicago Times, which is the Democratic organ of that locality, had to say about the proposed nominations:

Tilden and Hendricks combined would be a guarantee of the success of the Hayes party, even in Indiana. * * * Instead of a strong ticket, Tilden and Hendricks would probably be found the weakest ticket that could be made. Tilden, without Hendricks, might carry New York, were it not that Tilden's nomination would inevitably give Indiana to the Hayes party in October. Hendricks, without Tilden, might possibly (but not probably) carry Indiana, but certainly not New York, Connecticut or New Jersey. But Tilden and Hendricks combined would be a trademark of political dishonesty that all honest citizens would spurn. It would not get an electoral vote north of the Ohio river. For Tilden to swallow Hendricks and survive is an imaginable possibility. For Hendricks to swallow Tilden and survive is an imaginable possibility. But for Tilden and Hendricks to swallow each other and survive is plainly not within the bounds of things possible.

Nor is it to be believed that all the Democrats of the South will support Tilden.

What we urge is that the public should be enlightened as to the depth and origin of this lately-born clamor for Tilden. It is meretricious and mechanical; as soon as his nomination is made the people will fall off from the ticket in disgust. Now pause and inquire, while there is yet time, about the truth of the matter. Respectable journals like the Memphis Appeal, the Savannah News, the Augusta Chronicle, testify to having been approached with money in the interest of this New York candidate, and there is indisputable and undisputed evidence that an advertising agency in New York is running off Mr. Tilden's name as Helmbold was wont to do his buchu. Is the strength so based a safe one on which to build the Democratic canvass? If so, go on; we wash our hands of the responsibility.

Evidences of this character are too numerous to exhaust in a single communication. I will occupy your space only by a few more from Northern Democratic papers. The Philadelphia Times said:

Without dealing with the question, whether or not Tilden deserves to be elected over Hayes, we turn to the practical and vital fact that he would be defeated by the largest popular majority ever cast against any candidate, excepting Mr. Greeley. He would be pitted against the same Mr. Hayes who won his election over Allen in 1875, and thereby his nomination in 1876, to the open defection of Mr. Tilden's friends and their defiant assaults upon their own party and its candidates, and the October elections in Ohio and Indiana would be swept by tens of thousands for Hayes, with New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Connecticut certain to follow in November by majorities second only to Grant's in 1872.

The Cadiz (Ohio) Sentinel said:

Bates & Locke, advertising agents of New York, send us some puns of that old bull-headed Ballouist, Sam. Tilden, which they want inserted as reading matter, and for which they offer to pay us in "rag money." We do not intend advertisements among reading matter, and therefore decline their offer. The proprietors of "sugar-coated" pills, who advertise in the Sentinel, have to assume the pressure and humbug the people by shortening the responsibility in the regular advertising columns. But this Tilden matter has another objection. The laws of Ohio forbid newspapers advertising shodden goods.

The New Haven Union said:

Governor Tilden meets with admirable success in capturing Democratic conventions in States where the party has virtually no existence. The sure Democratic States are all bitingly opposed to Tilden, so far as public sentiment is concerned, but Tilden's money has a perceptible influence on the delegate. It would not surprise us in the least should Tilden pull through. He is utterly unscrupulous, and by his lavish expenditure of money now, he is raising hope in the breasts of impetuous strikers that money will flow like water if he becomes the standard-bearer.

Can anything more be wanting to prove that Tilden will not command the support of his own party in November, or that, if he does, his party is wholly devoid of honesty and self respect? But such definitions of Tilden's character are not borrowed by Republicans solely from Democratic papers. Prominent Democrats before his nomination spoke of him quite as dishonest as he is. He has been counsel for all the broken-down corporations with which New York has been afflicted for a long term of years, and out of them he has not come with clean hands.

General Fwing of Ohio remarked:

I am very much surprised at one thing: the advocacy of Tilden comes either from States that are intensely Democratic or hopelessly Republican, while two great States whose vote is the index to the final result of the fight are arrayed sternly against him. It is also a curious thing that Manning, editor of the Albany paper regarded as Tilden's special organ, should, in an interview in St. Louis, make the statement that Governor Tilden is looking for the receipt of the votes of a large number of Republicans in New York.

Hon. George W. Hook, delegate to the St. Louis Convention, from Ohio, says:

The party can survive a Presidential defeat, as it has already survived three since 1860, transmuted under the same auspices and leadership as the present; but it cannot survive the sacrifice of the great principle of equality to the rights of the people, which it was organized to maintain. * * * He (Tilden) has used his fortune with a lavish hand to promote his political aspirations. He is the first aspirant for Presidential honors in the history of the country who has utilized the practical press by advertising his qualifications as extensively and as successfully as Helmholtz advertised his barcha. Such a man, fellow-citizen, who relies upon such instrumentalities, and who seeks by indirection to compass his personal advancement, is not the man to lead the Democratic party to victory in this Centennial year of the Republic.

Hon. Augustus Schell of New York said :

I am decidedly and unalterably opposed to Governor Tilden as a Presidential candidate. He is bitterly opposed by some of the best known and most influential Democrats in the State, in the metropolis, and all through the interior. It is idle to talk of his ability to carry New York.

Colonel Isaac R. Eaton :

If Tilden is nominated, the greenback men will organize and nominate a candidate on a greenback platform in less than thirty days from the adjournment of the convention. The Kansas Democrats will utterly refuse to support Tilden.

General James B. Steadman :

Under no circumstances that could be imagined would we accept Tilden. If Tilden should, unfortunately, receive the nomination, Hayes would beat him in Ohio by 60,000 to 70,000 majority, and in Indiana he would be beaten by from 20,000 to 25,000. If any other man that has been named should be nominated on a platform declaring in favor of an immediate repeal of the Resumption Act, we can carry Ohio by 25,000 majority. We would not even accept Tilden on a platform with that plank in it, because the man and the platform would neutralize each other. If the city of Toledo, in which I live, is to be taken as at all a test of the State, he would be beaten utterly by Hayes.

Hon. August Belmont of New York :

Those who claim that Tilden is unassailable do not know him, or if they do, then they are

General William M. Tilden severely castigated Tilden before a crowd of delegates at St. Louis, and said :

The greater part of the State is opposed to Tilden now; a large part of the New York delegation was opposed to him; and it meant something, this opposition, for the opposing faction comprised all, or nearly all, the brains of the delegation. With Tilden it was impossible to carry Indiana and Ohio in October, and if they were not carried for the Democratic party, there would be no cause for rejoicing in November.

Dan. Voorhees said :

I am not surprised at all these things coming out on Tilden. I knew they were all there and were bound to appear. And, he added suggestively, I am expecting, every day, something still worse to be developed.

De Witt C. Littlejohn said :

I am utterly opposed to the nomination of Mr. Tilden. I do not think he has the first qualification to make a good President. He is not a statesman, but a political trickster.

Having fully replied to the charge that Republicans are telling lies about Governor Tilden, I hope that our people may have their minds set at rest on this subject, and that they will hold Democrats, who claim to be honest, to strict account for their honesty. If they vote for Tilden they will prove disloyal to their own party and to their own convictions.

W. WOODBURN.
